When Macy Johnson imagined the kind of mentor she wanted, she pictured someone with a strong personality but who would also be a good sounding board to help her talk through career and life decisions. What she got from Betsy Jackson was that and more. Both women found genuine friendship.

Johnson is a manager for enterprise learning programs at BOK Financial, and Jackson has been a partner at Hall Estill Law Firm for 20 years. The two were paired through affinity groups within the Tulsa Area United Way.
