Job is a seasoned litigator with broad experience representing and advising clients involved in complex commercial litigation, including oil and gas, construction, international, trade secrets and class action defense cases. He represents a range of domestic and foreign clients—including mid-market firms, closely-held businesses, and private individuals — in federal and state courts across the country and globally. Job assists clients in finding cost-effective, innovative, full-scoped ways to resolve and prevail in their business disputes and litigation-related matters.

Within his oil and gas practice, Job represents oil and gas clients - primarily E&P and midstream companies - in a wide range of disputes in federal and state court. Prior to entering private practice, Job served as a judicial clerk for The Honorable Stanley F. Birch, Jr., U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit.
